

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A roof protection device for an armored combat or security vehicle that uses at least one protection means, wherein said device incorporates a structure to receive said protection means, said structure being mounted able to rotate on a support integral with said roof so as to occupy an active protection position and a passive position in which it is moved aside.